Jordan is in his early twenties and looking for people to join his staff team and help with the transition from living with family to living in his own home. People who know Jordan well describe him as intelligent, likeable, affectionate, and happy.

Jordan is very inquisitive and focussed and a keen problem solver. The mischievous side of his nature means that some of his problem solving will keep you on your toes! Jordan is very energetic, and you will need to be fast to keep up with him. Jordan's memory is excellent, and he is really observant; He is always watching and learning. Being active and mentally stimulated is important for Jordan and it is essential that his days are as predictable as they can be and have structure and routine.

Jordan's current team is quite small as he is supported a few days a week. Now that he is moving into his own home, he needs a bigger team which can provide 24-hour support. Although small, the current team is really committed and most of them have been with Jordan for a few years having supported him with transition from school. Jordan is looking to recruit additional staff who will be able to fit into his team and offer a similar level of commitment. Jordan lives with a learning disability, autism, and pica and he needs staff who will be confident in supporting him to manage the impact these have on his life.

Jordan is looking for support to move into his own home and adapt to having staff with him 24 hours a day. Jordan is very close to his family and may find this change quite difficult to adapt to at first. His goals are to feel and be safe at home and out in the community, to pursue his interests and develop new ones, and to stay well.

Jordan is looking for people who

- are able to work 2:1 as part of a large team
- are confident, adaptable and are fast thinkers
- can be innovative and creative in helping him to source and engage in meaningful activities
- can apply a consistent approach and provide routine, structure, and predictability to his life
- maintain relationships with his family
- can keep him mentally stimulated and not become bored

- are prepared to learn

The ability to drive is desirable as Jordan has a mobility car. The ability to speak Malayalam would be advantageous but not essential. Jordan is happy with both male and female staff.
